

2008 SOUTH POLE EXPEDITION FOR KIDS

In December 2008, five area businessmen will ski to the South Pole in support of local kids' programs.

Inspired by their highly successful North Pole excursion in 2006, where they raised half a million dollars for children's charities, they are set to test their limits in Antarctica. This will be a gruelling 200k journey in -40° to -60° weather at an effective altitude of 12,000 feet. Burning 6,000 to 8,000 calories a day, and towing a sled with a weight of 100lbs, they expect to be on the ice for over two weeks. Battling relentless winds, extreme cold and demanding physical requirements, this will be their greatest personal challenge to date.

THE SOUTH POLE EXPEDITION FOR KIDS NEEDS YOUR HELP!

Please consider supporting their efforts to raise funds to support children and families in need in your local community.
